The perfect match amongst three outstanding musicians mastering the Brazilian North-East urban music. Mariana Caetano contributes with her powerful voice and an engaging and quite personal way of exchanging with the audience; Yann Le Corre brings the roots of Breton culture in his virtuous musicality while Marcelo Costa welds point them all with surgical precision.

Joy.D sets up the basement of her sensitive pop soul by digging into her Indian Ocean roots (Reunion island) and by exploring her own vision of what multi ethnic culture is nowadays. Joy.D voice is singular, honest and powerful.

On one side it's like a rock concert with high energy and you will want to dance on this « Power Quartet ». On the other side, you will feel calmer, more contemplative. Ndiaz will make you live an amazing new experience with the discovery of a culture through its dance and music open to the world.

Fleuves is an atypical trio composed of clarinetist Emilien Robic, Piano Fender Rhodes player Samson Dayou and bass player Romain Dubois. While building their entire repertoire inspired by the rhythms of traditional dances from Brittany, the three musicians developed a unique electronic music endowed with a strong cinematic potential.
